FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF MISSISSIPPI
NORTHERN DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

vs.

CRIMINAL ACTION No.: 3:18-CR-259-HTW-FKB

COURTNEY KENTRELL CHAPMAN

ORDER DENYING COMPASSIONATE RELEASE

BEFORE THIS COURT is the defendant's Motion for Compassionate Release [Docket no. 31]. Defendant, by his motion, asks this court to reduce his sentence, or to order a Compassionate Release from the custody of the United States Bureau of Prisons. The United States of America opposes such motion, saying that defendant has failed to meet his burden of proof. This court has reviewed the submissions of the parties and finds as follows.

I. FACTUAL BASIS

The Defendant was indicted by a Grand Jury in December 2018 [Docket no. 1]. The indictment alleged a single felony violation of federal law, charging the Defendant with possessing a firearm after having been convicted of a felony crime in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Sections 922(g)(1) and 924(a)(2). In January 2019, the Defendant pled guilty to the single count and was sentenced, in May 2019, to 90 months confinement in the custody of the United States Bureau of Prisons (BOP) followed by three years of supervised release, as well as a fine. The Defendant, currently incarcerated in United States Penitentiary (USP) McCreary in Pine Knot, Kentucky, is currently scheduled to be released on May 11, 2025.

The Defendant filed his handwritten pro se motion on March 5, 2021 [Docket no. 31] (dated Feb. 9, 2021). The Motion asserts that the COVID-19 pandemic, and BOP's response to the pandemic constitute an extraordinary and compelling circumstance that justifies his release from incarceration. The Defendant also describes suffering from various medical conditions, including high blood pressure, chronic kidney disease and kidney failure, conditions that he contends put him at greater risk than the average prisoner for severe consequences and possibly death from Covid-19. The Defendant asks for either compassionate release or a sentence reduction.

The United States filed a Response in Opposition to the motion [doc. no. 33]. The Federal Public Defender's Office entered its appearance on Chapman's behalf and filed a Reply in support of Chapman's motion on April 5, 2021 [doc. no. 35]. Chapman also filed a Reply, pro se, [doc. no. 36] on April 5, 2021. Chapman's pro se Reply addressed the United States' brief in opposition, but it did not make any reference to the Reply filed on his behalf by Attorney Princess Williams of the Public Defender's Office. It is quite feasible that Chapman had not received the Reply filed by his attorney on his behalf when he submitted his reply.

The Defendant was 32 years old at the time he filed his motion for compassionate release. In determining conditions which may lead to a higher risk for severe illness related to COVID-19, the Government relies on the current list provided by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).¹ That list includes chronic kidney disease – a condition from which Chapman claims to suffer.

II. BOP AND THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC

COVID-19, an extremely contagious illness, has caused many deaths in the United States in a short period of time and has resulted in massive disruption to the American society and economy. In response to the pandemic, BOP has taken significant measures to protect the health of the inmates in its charge.

BOP has explained that “maintaining safety and security of [BOP] institutions is [BOP’s] highest priority.” BOP, Updates to BOP COVID-19 Action Plan: Inmate Movement (3/19/2020). BOP has had a Pandemic Influenza Plan in place since 2012. That protocol is lengthy and detailed, establishing a six-phase framework requiring BOP facilities to begin preparations when there is first a “[s]uspected human outbreak overseas.” The plan addresses social distancing, hygienic and cleaning protocols, and the quarantining and treatment of symptomatic inmates.

Consistent with that plan, BOP began planning for potential coronavirus transmissions in January, 2020. At that time, BOP established a working group to develop policies in consultation with subject matter experts in the Centers for Disease Control. BOP also reviewed guidance from the World Health Organization.

On March 13, 2020, BOP began to modify its operations, in accordance with its Coronavirus (COVID-19) Action Plan (hereinafter referred to as “Action Plan”), to minimize the risk of COVID-19 transmission into and inside its facilities. Since that time, as events require, BOP has repeatedly revised the Action Plan to address the crisis.

Beginning April 1, 2020, BOP implemented Phase Five of the Action Plan, which currently governs operations. The current, modified operations plan requires that all inmates in every BOP institution be secured in their assigned cells/quarters for a period of at least fourteen (14) days, in order to stop any spread of the disease. Only limited group gathering is afforded, with attention to social distancing to the extent possible, to facilitate commissary, laundry, showers, telephone, and computer access. BOP further has severely limited the movement of inmates and detainees among its facilities. Though there will be exceptions for medical treatment and similar exigencies, this step, as well, will limit transmissions of the disease. Likewise, all official staff travel has been cancelled, as has most staff training.

All staff and inmates have been and will continue to be issued face masks and strongly encouraged to wear an appropriate face covering in public areas when social distancing cannot be achieved.

Every newly admitted inmate is screened for COVID-19 exposure risk factors and symptoms. Asymptomatic inmates with risk of exposure are placed in quarantine for a minimum of fourteen (14) days, or until cleared by medical staff. Symptomatic inmates are placed in isolation until they test negative for COVID-19, or are cleared by medical staff as meeting CDC criteria for release from isolation. In addition, in areas with sustained community transmission, all facility staff are screened for symptoms. Staff registering a temperature of 100.4 degrees Fahrenheit or higher are barred from the facility on that basis alone. A staff member with a stuffy or runny nose can be placed on leave by a medical officer.

Contractor access to BOP facilities is restricted to only those performing essential services (e.g., medical or mental health care, religious, etc.) or those who perform necessary maintenance on essential systems. All volunteer visits are suspended, absent authorization by the Deputy Director of BOP. Any contractor or volunteer who requires access will be screened for symptoms and risk factors.

BOP stopped social and legal visits on March 13, 2020, and those visits remain suspended, to limit the number of people entering the facility and interacting with inmates. In order to ensure that familial relationships are maintained throughout this disruption, BOP has increased detainees' telephone allowance to 500 minutes per month. Tours of facilities are also suspended. Legal visits will be permitted on a case-by-case basis after the attorney has been screened for infection in accordance with the screening protocols for prison staff.

In addition, in an effort to relieve the strain on BOP facilities and assist inmates who are most vulnerable to the disease and pose the least threat to the community, BOP is exercising greater authority to designate inmates for home confinement. On March 26, 2020, the Attorney General directed the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, upon considering the totality of the circumstances concerning each inmate, to prioritize the use of statutory authority to place prisoners in home confinement. That authority includes the ability to place an inmate in home confinement during the last six months or 10% of a sentence, whichever is shorter, see 18 U.S.C. § 3624(c)(2)², and to move to home confinement those elderly and terminally ill inmates specified in 34 U.S.C. § 60541(g)³.

² (c) Prerelease custody.—[...]

(2) Home confinement authority.--The authority under this subsection may be used to place a prisoner in home confinement for the shorter of 10 percent of the term of imprisonment of that prisoner or 6 months. The Bureau of Prisons shall, to the extent practicable, place prisoners with lower risk levels and lower needs on home confinement for the maximum amount of time permitted under this paragraph.

18 U.S.C.A. § 3624 (West)

³ (g) Elderly and family reunification for certain nonviolent offenders pilot program

(1) Program authorized

(A) In general

The Attorney General shall conduct a pilot program to determine the effectiveness of removing eligible elderly offenders and eligible terminally ill offenders from Bureau of Prisons facilities and placing such offenders on home detention until the expiration of the prison term to which the offender was sentenced.

(B) Placement in home detention

In carrying out a pilot program as described in subparagraph (A), the Attorney General may release some or all eligible elderly offenders and eligible terminally ill offenders from

Bureau of Prisons facilities to home detention, upon written request from either the Bureau of Prisons or an eligible elderly offender or eligible terminally ill offender.

(C) Waiver

The Attorney General is authorized to waive the requirements of section 3624 of Title 18 as necessary to provide for the release of some or all eligible elderly offenders and eligible terminally ill offenders from Bureau of Prisons facilities to home detention for the purposes of the pilot program under this subsection.

(2) Violation of terms of home detention

A violation by an eligible elderly offender or eligible terminally ill offender of the terms of home detention (including the commission of another Federal, State, or local crime) shall result in the removal of that offender from home detention and the return of that offender to the designated Bureau of Prisons institution in which that offender was imprisoned immediately before placement on home detention under paragraph (1), or to another appropriate Bureau of Prisons institution, as determined by the Bureau of Prisons.

(3) Scope of pilot program

A pilot program under paragraph (1) shall be conducted through Bureau of Prisons facilities designated by the Attorney General as appropriate for the pilot program and shall be carried out during fiscal years 2019 through 2023.

(4) Implementation and evaluation

The Attorney General shall monitor and evaluate each eligible elderly offender or eligible terminally ill offender placed on home detention under this section, and shall report to Congress concerning the experience with the program at the end of the period described in paragraph (3). The Administrative Office of the United States Courts and the United States probation offices shall provide such assistance and carry out such functions as the Attorney General may request in monitoring, supervising, providing services to, and evaluating eligible elderly offenders and eligible terminally ill offenders released to home detention under this section.

(5) Definitions

In this section:

(A) Eligible elderly offender

The term “eligible elderly offender” means an offender in the custody of the Bureau of Prisons--

(i) who is not less than 60 years of age;

(ii) who is serving a term of imprisonment that is not life imprisonment based on conviction for an offense or offenses that do not include any crime of violence (as defined in section 16 of Title 18), sex offense (as defined in section 20911(5) of this title), offense described in section 2332b(g)(5)(B) of Title 18, or offense under chapter 37 of Title 18, and has served 2/3 of the term of imprisonment to which the offender was sentenced;

(iii) who has not been convicted in the past of any Federal or State crime of violence, sex offense, or other offense described in clause (ii);

(iv) who has not been determined by the Bureau of Prisons, on the basis of information the Bureau uses to make custody classifications, and in the sole discretion of the Bureau, to have a history of violence, or of engaging in conduct constituting a sex offense or other offense described in clause (ii);

(v) who has not escaped, or attempted to escape, from a Bureau of Prisons institution;

(vi) with respect to whom the Bureau of Prisons has determined that release to home detention under this section will result in a substantial net reduction of costs to the Federal Government; and

Congress has also acted to enhance BOP's flexibility to respond to the pandemic. Under the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act ("CARES Act"), enacted on March 27, 2020, BOP may "lengthen the maximum amount of time for which the Director is authorized to place a prisoner in home confinement" if the Attorney General finds that emergency conditions will materially affect the functioning of BOP. Pub. L. No. 116-136, § 12003(b)(2), 134 Stat. 281, 516 (to be codified at 18 U.S.C. § 3621 note). On April 3, 2020, the Attorney General gave the Director of BOP the authority to exercise this discretion, beginning at the facilities that thus far have seen the greatest incidence of coronavirus transmission. As of July 29, 2021, BOP has transferred a total of 28,982 inmates to home confinement.

(vii) who has been determined by the Bureau of Prisons to be at no substantial risk of engaging in criminal conduct or of endangering any person or the public if released to home detention.

(B) Home detention

The term "home detention" has the same meaning given the term in the Federal Sentencing Guidelines as of April 9, 2008, and includes detention in a nursing home or other residential long-term care facility.

(C) Term of imprisonment

The term "term of imprisonment" includes multiple terms of imprisonment ordered to run consecutively or concurrently, which shall be treated as a single, aggregate term of imprisonment for purposes of this section.

(D) Eligible terminally ill offender

The term "eligible terminally ill offender" means an offender in the custody of the Bureau of Prisons who--

(i) is serving a term of imprisonment based on conviction for an offense or offenses that do not include any crime of violence (as defined in section 16(a) of Title 18), sex offense (as defined in section 20911(5) of this title), offense described in section 2332b(g)(5)(B) of Title 18, or offense under chapter 37 of Title 18;

(ii) satisfies the criteria specified in clauses (iii) through (vii) of subparagraph (A); and

(iii) has been determined by a medical doctor approved by the Bureau of Prisons to be--

(I) in need of care at a nursing home, intermediate care facility, or assisted living facility, as those terms are defined in section 1715w of Title 12; or

(II) diagnosed with a terminal illness.

Taken together, all of these measures are designed to mitigate sharply the risks of COVID-19 transmission in a BOP institution. BOP has pledged to continue monitoring the pandemic and to adjust its practices as necessary to maintain the safety of prison staff and inmates, while also fulfilling its mandate of incarcerating all persons sentenced or detained based on judicial orders.

III. ANALYSIS

Chapman filed his motions, citing Title 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A) for authority. Section 3582, commonly referred to as the First Step Act, provides:

(c) Modification of an imposed term of imprisonment.--The court may not modify a term of imprisonment once it has been imposed except that--

(1) in any case—

(A) the court, upon motion of the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, or upon motion of the defendant after the defendant has fully exhausted all administrative rights to appeal a failure of the Bureau of Prisons to bring a motion on the defendant's behalf or the lapse of 30 days from the receipt of such a request by the warden of the defendant's facility, whichever is earlier, may reduce the term of imprisonment (and may impose a term of probation or supervised release with or without conditions that does not exceed the unserved portion of the original term of imprisonment), after considering the factors set forth in section 3553(a) to the extent that they are applicable, if it finds that--

(i) extraordinary and compelling reasons warrant such a reduction; or

(ii) the defendant is at least 70 years of age, has served at least 30 years in prison, pursuant to a sentence imposed under section 3559(c), for the offense or offenses for which the defendant is currently imprisoned, and a determination has been made by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons that the defendant is not a danger to the safety of any other person or the community, as provided under section 3142(g);

and that such a reduction is consistent with applicable policy statements issued by the Sentencing Commission; and

(B) the court may modify an imposed term of imprisonment to the extent otherwise expressly permitted by statute or by Rule 35 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure; [...]

18 U.S.C. § 3582.

a. Exhaustion of Administrative Remedy

The government has conceded that Chapman has exhausted his administrative remedies as to his Motion for Compassionate Release and that his motion is now properly before this court. See Government's Response in Opposition [doc. no. 33 p.3].

b. Burden of Proof

In general, the defendant has the burden to show circumstances meeting the test for compassionate release. United States v. Heromin, 2019 WL 2411311, at *2 (M.D. Fla. June 7, 2019). As the terminology in the statute makes clear, compassionate release is “rare” and “extraordinary.” United States v. Willis, 2019 WL 2403192, at *3 (D.N.M. June 7, 2019) (citations omitted).

To establish that defendant should be afforded compassionate release, the defendant must show that “extraordinary and compelling circumstances exist”. The United States Congress further defined its intent in Title 28 U.S.C. § 994(t) which provides:

The Commission, in promulgating general policy statements regarding the sentencing modification provisions in section 3582(c)(1)(A) of title 18, shall describe what should be considered extraordinary and compelling reasons for sentence reduction, including the criteria to be applied and a list of specific examples. Rehabilitation of the defendant alone shall not be considered an extraordinary and compelling reason.

For further guidance, the Sentencing Guidelines policy statement at § 1B1.13 provides that the Court may grant release if “extraordinary and compelling circumstances” exist, “after considering the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), to the extent that they are applicable,” and the Court determines that “the defendant is not a danger to the safety of any other person or to the community, as provided in 18 U.S.C. § 3142(g).”

The Commission identifies the “extraordinary and compelling reasons” that may justify compassionate release as follows:

1. Extraordinary and Compelling Reasons.—Provided the defendant meets the requirements of subdivision (2) [regarding absence of danger to the community], extraordinary and compelling reasons exist under any of the circumstances set forth below:

(A) Medical Condition of the Defendant.—

(i) The defendant is suffering from a terminal illness (i.e., a serious and advanced illness with an end of life trajectory). A specific prognosis of life expectancy (i.e., a probability of death within a specific time period) is not required. Examples include metastatic solid-tumor cancer, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), end-stage organ disease, and advanced dementia.

(ii) The defendant is—

(I) suffering from a serious physical or medical condition,

(II) suffering from a serious functional or cognitive impairment, or

(III) experiencing deteriorating physical or mental health because of the aging process, that substantially diminishes the ability of the defendant to provide self-care within the environment of a correctional facility and from which he or she is not expected to recover.

(B) Age of the Defendant.—The defendant (i) is at least 65 years old; (ii) is experiencing a serious deterioration in physical or mental health because of the aging process; and (iii) has served at least 10 years or 75 percent of his or her term of imprisonment, whichever is less.

(C) Family Circumstances.—

(i) The death or incapacitation of the caregiver of the defendant’s minor child or minor children.

(ii) The incapacitation of the defendant’s spouse or registered partner when the defendant would be the only available caregiver for the spouse or registered partner.

(D) Other Reasons.—As determined by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, there exists in the defendant’s case an extraordinary and compelling reason other than, or in combination with, the reasons described in subdivisions (A) through (C).

Chapman argues that he falls into the category listed at U.S.S.G. §1B1.13, comment (n.1), a defendant suffering from a terminal illness or other medical condition “that substantially diminishes the ability of the defendant to provide self-care within the environment of a correctional facility and from which he or she is not expected to recover.” Id. Chapman adds that while his condition alone, could possibly be terminal, the CDC has determined that adults of any age with chronic kidney disease are at an increased risk of severe illness from the virus that causes Covid-19 and could lead to Chapman’s demise.⁴ Chapman states it is highly unlikely that he will recover from his chronic kidney disease/failure.

Chapman lists the following medical conditions as placing him at risk for contracting COVID-19: hypertension (high blood pressure); chronic kidney disease and chronic kidney failure. One page of medical records from the University of Mississippi Medical Center is attached to his motion to corroborate his condition. That page is dated 4/29/2016, which is prior to Chapman’s incarceration, and it is numbered “Page 18” of a multi-page document. No other pages are included.

These conditions do not rise to the level of being either a terminal illness or a medical condition that substantially diminishes the ability of the Defendant to provide self-care within the correctional facility and from which he is not expected to recover. Chapman claims he is powerless to take the preventative self-care measures directed by the CDC; but he is no less able to take the the self-care measures he describes than any other incarcerated individual. This court has earlier discussed the steps that have been and are being taken by the BOP to protect the health of the inmates in its care.

Chapman additionally argues that the categories of health conditions listed in the Sentencing Commission’s policy statement “do not capture all extraordinary and compelling circumstances,” and that the policy statement “indicate[s] that medical conditions, alone or in conjunction with other factors, can constitute extraordinary and compelling reasons” for compassionate release. United States v. Beck, No. 13-cr-186-6-CCE, 2019 WL 2716506, *8 (M.D.N.C. June 28, 2019). Chapman also says that “the coronavirus has created a[n] ‘extraordinary and compelling reason’ that warrants a reduction of his sentence.”

This court is not persuaded. As United States District Court Judge Keith Starrett recently said:

“Preexisting medical conditions that place a defendant at increased risk for serious illness from COVID-19 are not in and of themselves sufficient to establish” grounds for compassionate release. United States v. McLin, 2020 WL 3803919, at *3 (S.D. Miss. July 7, 2020). Likewise, “general concerns about possible exposure to COVID-19” are not sufficient. United States v. Takewell, 2020 WL 404360 at *4 (W.D. Louisiana July 17, 2020). “[T]he mere existence of COVID-19 in society” and, consequently, the prison system “cannot independently justify compassionate release, especially considering BOP’s statutory role, and its extensive and professional efforts to curtail the virus’s spread.” United States v. Raia, 954 F.3d 594, 597 (3rd Cir. 2020) (citing BOP’s COVID-19 Action Plan).

United States v. Williams, No. 2:16-CR-10-KS-MTP, 2020 WL 4210476, at *3 (S.D. Miss. July 22, 2020).

This court is required to follow 5th Circuit precedent. See Guillot v. Unum Provident Corp., No. 05-0858, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 94734, at *12 (W.D. La. Nov. 21, 2006). A generalized fear of contracting COVID-19 does not justify compassionate release. United States v. Brown, No. 3:18-cr-29-DCB-LRA, 2020 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 109625, at *5 (S.D. Miss. June 23, 2020) (Citing United States v. Williams, No. 3:19-00239-01, 2020 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 99374, 2020 WL 3037075, at * (W.D. La. Jun. 5, 2020); United States v. Veras, No. 3:19-cr-010, 2020 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 59748, 2020 WL 1675975, at * 6 (M.D. Pa. Apr. 6, 2020); United States v. Clark, No. CR 17-85-SDD-RLB, 2020 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 59439, 2020 WL 1557397, at *5 (M.D. La. Apr. 1, 2020)).

As of July 29, 2021, the BOP held 130,484 inmates. BOP already had instituted its own program to address COVID-19 concerns and its effects on the inmate population. For this court to find that COVID presents such an overwhelming circumstance, standing on its own, would defy logic and potentially allow all the inmates currently held in BOP facilities to be returned to the free world. Accordingly, this court does not find that the mere existence of the COVID-19 pandemic, without finding the remaining factors listed in the statute, mandates or allows a compassionate release.

c. Danger to the Community

Even if this court were to find that Chapman has presented extraordinary and compelling reasons to be granted compassionate release, he still has not demonstrated that he “is not a danger to the safety of any other person or to the community, as provided in Title 18 U.S.C. § 3142(g).” U.S.S.G. § 1B1.13(2).⁵ Title 18 U.S.C. § 3142(g)⁶ requires this court to consider factors such as

⁵ Upon motion of the Director of the Bureau of Prisons under 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(A), the court may reduce a term of imprisonment (and may impose a term of supervised release with or without conditions that does not exceed the unserved portion of the original term of imprisonment) if, after considering the factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a), to the extent that they are applicable, the court determines that--

- (1)(A) Extraordinary and compelling reasons warrant the reduction; or
 - (B) The defendant (i) is at least 70 years old; and (ii) has served at least 30 years in prison pursuant to a sentence imposed under 18 U.S.C. § 3559(c) for the offense or offenses for which the defendant is imprisoned;
- (2) The defendant is not a danger to the safety of any other person or to the community, as provided in 18 U.S.C. § 3142(g); and
- (3) The reduction is consistent with this policy statement.

U.S.S.G. 1B1.13

⁶ (g) Factors to be considered.--The judicial officer shall, in determining whether there are conditions of release that will reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required and the safety of any other person and the community, take into account the available information concerning--

- (1) the nature and circumstances of the offense charged, including whether the offense is a crime of violence, a violation of section 1591, a Federal crime of terrorism, or involves a minor victim or a controlled substance, firearm, explosive, or destructive device;
- (2) the weight of the evidence against the person;
- (3) the history and characteristics of the person, including--
 - (A) the person's character, physical and mental condition, family ties, employment, financial resources, length of residence in the community, community ties, past conduct, history relating to drug or alcohol abuse, criminal history, and record concerning appearance at court proceedings; and the nature and circumstances of the charged offense, the history and characteristics of the defendant, and the nature and seriousness of the danger posed to any person or to the community at large by the defendant's release.

The circumstances of the instant offense as contained in the Pre-sentence Investigation Report are as follows:

On August 15, 2018, the Defendant, driving a green Honda, was stopped at a police checkpoint. He only had a suspended learner's permit. A female passenger also was in the car. Chapman had an unknown number of pills in his pocket. These, he quickly chewed and swallowed. Thereafter, he was taken to the emergency room of the University of Mississippi Medical Center. When Chapman's restraints were removed at the hospital, he fled on foot, and was not apprehended until fourteen days later, on August 29, 2018.

Meanwhile, officers had recovered from the green Honda he had been driving, several bags of marijuana, a digital scale, a yellow box of small plastic bags, a firearm loaded with 12 rounds of ammunition (on the driver's side), and two additional magazines. Police later determined that the extended magazine did not fit the firearm found in the car. The firearm had been reported stolen in Monroe County, Mississippi. Chapman was on parole with the Mississippi Department of Corrections at the time of this incident.

(B) whether, at the time of the current offense or arrest, the person was on probation, on parole, or on other release pending trial, sentencing, appeal, or completion of sentence for an offense under Federal, State, or local law; and

(4) the nature and seriousness of the danger to any person or the community that would be posed by the person's release. In considering the conditions of release described in subsection (c)(1)(B)(xi) or (c)(1)(B)(xii) of this section, the judicial officer may upon his own motion, or shall upon the motion of the Government, conduct an inquiry into the source of the property to be designated for potential forfeiture or offered as collateral to secure a bond, and shall decline to accept the designation, or the use as collateral, of property that, because of its source, will not reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required.

In addition to several misdemeanor convictions, Chapman has the following three prior state felony convictions: 1) He pled guilty and was convicted of “possession of cocaine with a firearm” in Hinds County, Mississippi on August 6, 2010. He was sentenced to 10 years, with five suspended and five to serve. 2) On December 1, 2011, Chapman pled guilty to “felony eluding” in Hinds County Circuit Court. He was sentenced to five years in MDOC custody, to run consecutively to the “possession of cocaine with a firearm” charge above, and consecutively to his conviction for “accessory after the fact of armed robbery.” 3) The latter conviction also occurred in Hinds County, Mississippi on December 1, 2011. Chapman was sentenced to five years in MDOC custody, to run consecutively with the previous two convictions.

Chapman was released on parole from the MDOC in 2015. He violated the conditions of his parole twice, including commission of the federal firearms offense for which he is currently incarcerated.

At sentencing, this Defendant was found to have a Criminal History category of VI. The Defendant has a documented history of violence, drug offenses, firearms, fleeing from law enforcement, and violating court orders.

To this court’s mind, Chapman has demonstrated that he is a danger to the community, not only because of the nature and circumstances of his current offense and criminal history, but also because of his unwillingness to accept responsibility for his conduct, as shown by his escape from law enforcement, attempts to elude law enforcement, and his swallowing of evidence. This Defendant has shown that he will go to extraordinary measures to escape punishment for his crimes. This Defendant has shown that he is a danger to the community and should not be released early.

Chapman claims to have completed multiple education courses during his incarceration and claims to have no disciplinary infractions. Both accomplishments are commendable, but he has served less than half of his sentence, and to release this Defendant this early into his term of incarceration would undermine the sentencing factors set out in 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). Such an early release would not reflect the seriousness of the offense the Defendant committed, nor would it serve to deter either the Defendant, or others inclined to follow in the Defendant's footsteps, from committing future offenses.

d. Home Detention

Chapman did not specifically ask for the option of home confinement. However, should he seek that relief, BOP is clearly solely responsible for determining an inmate's place of incarceration once convicted. See 18 U.S.C. § 3621(b)⁷; Moore v. United States Att'y Gen., 473

⁷ (b) Place of imprisonment. The Bureau of Prisons shall designate the place of the prisoner's imprisonment, and shall, subject to bed availability, the prisoner's security designation, the prisoner's programmatic needs, the prisoner's mental and medical health needs, any request made by the prisoner related to faith-based needs, recommendations of the sentencing court, and other security concerns of the Bureau of Prisons, place the prisoner in a facility as close as practicable to the prisoner's primary residence, and to the extent practicable, in a facility within 500 driving miles of that residence. The Bureau shall, subject to consideration of the factors described in the preceding sentence and the prisoner's preference for staying at his or her current facility or being transferred, transfer prisoners to facilities that are closer to the prisoner's primary residence even if the prisoner is already in a facility within 500 driving miles of that residence. The Bureau may designate any available penal or correctional facility that meets minimum standards of health and habitability established by the Bureau, whether maintained by the Federal Government or otherwise and whether within or without the judicial district in which the person was convicted, that the Bureau determines to be appropriate and suitable, considering—

- (1) the resources of the facility contemplated;
- (2) the nature and circumstances of the offense;
- (3) the history and characteristics of the prisoner;
- (4) any statement by the court that imposed the sentence—
 - (A) concerning the purposes for which the sentence to imprisonment was determined to be warranted; or
 - (B) recommending a type of penal or correctional facility as appropriate; and
- (5) any pertinent policy statement issued by the Sentencing Commission pursuant to section 994(a)(2) of title 28.

In designating the place of imprisonment or making transfers under this subsection, there shall be no favoritism given to prisoners of high social or economic status. The Bureau may at any time, having regard for the same matters, direct the transfer of a prisoner from one penal or correctional facility to another. The Bureau shall make available appropriate substance abuse treatment for each prisoner the Bureau determines has a treatable condition of substance addiction or abuse. Any order, recommendation, or request by a sentencing court that a convicted person serve a term

F.2d 1375, 1376 (5th Cir. 1973) (per curiam); see also McKune v. Lile, 536 U.S. 24, 39 (2002) (plurality opinion) (“It is well settled that the decision where to house inmates is at the core of prison administrators’ expertise.”). A court has no authority to designate a prisoner’s place of incarceration. See United States v. Voda, 994 F.2d 149, 151-52 (5th Cir. 1993). This court agrees.

IV. CONCLUSION

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that Courtney Kentrell Chapman’s Motion for Compassionate Release [Docket no. 31] be hereby DENIED for the reasons stated above.

SO ORDERED this the 7th day of September, 2021.

of imprisonment in a community corrections facility shall have no binding effect on the authority of the Bureau under this section to determine or change the place of imprisonment of that person. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a designation of a place of imprisonment under this subsection is not reviewable by any court.
